

Unlocking Business Potential: An Overview of CPA Advisory Services

For decades, CPAs have been the backbone of financial compliance, ensuring that businesses meet regulatory requirements and accurately report financial performance. While these services remain essential, many accounting firms also offer a range of advisory services that can provide strategic value to your business. These services are designed to address various challenges and opportunities you might face, from enhancing financial efficiency to navigating complex transactions. .

Understanding these advisory options can help you identify areas where expert guidance might make a real difference. From financial planning to M&A consulting, these services are designed to address the unique challenges and opportunities you face. Let's explore how tapping into CPA advisory services can elevate your business to new heights.

What are advisory services?

Unlike compliance services that focus on adhering to regulations and reporting past performance, advisory services are forward-thinking and strategic. They involve partnering with you to identify opportunities for growth, optimize operations, and plan for future success.

Financial planning and analysis (FP&A)

Financial planning and analysis involve creating detailed financial forecasts, budgets, and models to guide your company's strategic decisions. An advisor might tailor financial models that simulate various business scenarios - helping you anticipate future revenues, expenses, and cash flows. By analyzing historical data and market trends, they provide insights that can inform everything from pricing strategies to investment decisions.

For instance, knowing in advance that your cash flow will tighten due to seasonal fluctuations allows you to adjust operations accordingly or secure financing. This ability to anticipate financial shortfalls or market downturns enables you to make informed decisions about expansion, capital investments, or cost management.

Business strategy development

Business strategy development involves collaborating with a CPA to define long-term goals and create a roadmap to achieve them. CPAs provide an objective assessment of your company's strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats. They help identify unique value propositions and market niches you may not have considered, aligning your strategies with current market conditions and your company's capabilities.

For instance, a CPA might determine that expanding into online sales could significantly increase your customer base with minimal overhead costs. An expert advisor can help you make well-informed decisions about entering new markets, launching new products, or adjusting your business model to adapt to industry changes.

Succession planning

Succession planning is a critical but often overlooked aspect of business strategy. It involves preparing for the future by identifying and developing new leaders who can replace existing ones when they retire or leave the company and evaluating different transition options.

For instance, if you're considering retirement or planning to exit your business, a CPA can help you explore various options, like transferring ownership to a family member, selling to a business partner or employee, or finding an external buyer. They can help value your business accurately, structure the deal to minimize tax liabilities, and create a transition plan that maintains business continuity.

Risk management

Risk management involves identifying and mitigating potential risks that could adversely affect your company's operations and profitability.

CPAs conducting this service perform thorough evaluations of various risk factors, including market fluctuations, credit exposure, operational inefficiencies, and compliance vulnerabilities. They also help develop risk mitigation strategies, establish internal controls, and create monitoring systems to proactively address these challenges.

Imagine anticipating a supply chain disruption due to geopolitical events. A risk management advisor could adjust your procurement strategies beforehand, ensuring uninterrupted operations. This proactive approach can protect your revenue and strengthen trust with investors and customers.

Technology consulting

Technology consulting helps businesses leverage technology to enhance efficiency, accuracy, and decision-making within their financial operations.

CPAs offering this service may help you select financial software, automate accounting processes, and integrate different systems to create a seamless operational flow. They ensure that the chosen technology solutions align with your business needs and that your team understands how to use the new tools effectively.

By leveraging the right technological tools under the guidance of an expert, you can streamline your financial processes, reduce operational costs, and gain valuable insights that drive better business decisions.

Fractional CFO services

Fractional CFO services provide businesses with high-level financial expertise on a part-time or project basis, offering strategic leadership without the expense of a full-time executive.

Fractional CFOs oversee critical financial functions such as strategy development, financial planning, fundraising, and stakeholder communication. They bring extensive experience to guide you through complex financial challenges, improve operational efficiency, and support key decision-making processes.

For instance, a small business experiencing rapid growth might leverage a fractional CFO to establish strong financial controls and plan for scalable expansion without the cost of an in-house CFO.

Mergers and acquisitions advisory

Mergers and acquisitions (M&A) advisory services assist businesses with the complex processes involved in buying, selling, or merging with other companies.

CPAs providing this service guide you through each stage of the transaction, including valuation, due diligence, deal structuring, and negotiation. They conduct thorough financial analyses to uncover potential risks and synergies, ensuring the deal aligns with your business objectives and delivers the desired value.

For example, if you're considering acquiring a competitor to expand your market share, an M&A advisor can evaluate the target company's financial health, identify hidden liabilities, and determine a fair purchase price. They can also help structure the deal to optimize tax implications and facilitate a smooth integration of the two businesses.

About Larson Gross

Ted Larson and Dennis Gross founded our firm in 1949. They built the business based on excellence, passion, integrity, trust and pro-action — values still important to us more than seven decades later.

Even well into their retirement years, Ted Larson and Dennis Gross continued to have the best interest of the firm at heart. Mr. Larson would come into the office on a regular basis to meet every new face and make a personal connection with each of our team members. He remembered the name of every employee, as well as the names of their spouses and children, and would greet clients by name as he passed by the reception desk. Sometimes, you'd even find a newspaper clipping on your desk that Mr. Larson dropped off, highlighting that your son made the honor roll. This is the example of a genuine relationship we strive to embody with our people and clients.

Today, we're led by ten partners who are growing our firm with respect for where we've come from and a new vision for future success. Our 120-plus team members and three offices located in Bellingham, Lynden and Burlington make us the 10th largest public accounting firm in the Puget Sound region. While we're determined to expand our impact and help strengthen as many businesses and individuals as we can, we're also committed to remaining a locally-owned organization. We're incredibly proud of where we've come from and look forward to a future of possibility
